

Little Miss 312 ~ All things fabulous, all things Chicago

Restaurant review – III Forks

22 Friday Jun 2012

Posted by Jessica Howells in Chicago, Dining

I have been hearing some major buzz about this place since it recently opened (namely that they have a rockin' rooftop deck and amazing food) so I couldn't wait to try it out! The restaurant is located just north of Millennium Park, and is decorated in a contemporary style but is still comfortable and warm.

This may just look like any ordinary piece of bread but don't be fooled. I usually pass on the bread basket but something about this bread intrigued me. It was warm and fresh and fluffy – so delish!

I ordered the seabass (sorry the pics are so bad), you'll just have to trust me on this one, it was spectacular. It was perfectly seasoned and it came with a bed of wild rice and asparagus. That clump at the bottom is the most amazing mashed potatoes EVER! They had a ton of sides that you can add to your order and these did not disappoint.

But we couldn't go to a steakhouse without ordering a steak. Our friend John ordered the bone-in steak and said it was amazing! They come a la carte (hence the sides) and come highly recommended.

Now Corey on the other hand has a... unique philosophy on dining. Dude lives for a good 'ole American burger. He thinks that if a nice restaurant puts a burger on their menu, it's going to be an amazing burger. Corey was convinced that N9ne steakhouse had the best burger in Chicago, until we went to III Forks. He wouldn't even give me a bite! How rude!

Then to top it all off, we had a free dessert courtesy of Foursquare (which is my new social media obsession). Our waiter was spot on with the suggestions throughout the whole evening so we left it up to him. He brought back this slice of heaven...

We had such an awesome night and I hope to go back soon.

The rooftop was packed by the time we got there so I didn't get a chance to check it out but I can't wait to next time. Here is a pic of it I found online.

